

CLICK HERE TO GO TO ONLINE LINK

MEDIA CENTER

THE DENVER POST

Q

CAPTURED PHOTO BLOG

A desperate journey for CBD in Colorado – Photographs by Joe Amon

Hundreds of families, like 12-year-old Preston and his mother, Ana, have moved to Colorado hoping to heal their sick children with CBD oil.

PATRICK TRAYLOR POSTED BY PATTRAYLOR ON 2014-12-07 15:25:02 TAGS: CANNABIS OIL CBD MEDICAL MARIJUANA PHOTO

Hundreds of families have moved to Colorado in hopes of healing their sick children — kids conventional medicine has failed. They're turning to a liquid form of marijuana that has helped some, but not all. This is the story of Ana Watson and her 12 year old son Preston Raynor, who journeyed to Colorado from North Carolina. She hopes to find Preston relief from his seizures with a form of cannabis oil high in CBD and very low in THC. (Photos by Joe Amon/The Denver Post) Click here for more of Preston and Ana's story.

HTTP://PHOTOS.DENVERPOST.COM/2014/12/07/DESPERATE-JOURNEY-STATE-OF-HOPE-CBD-IN-COLORADO/

STORY 5

BY JOE AMON

Ana Watson planned and executed the complicated move of her son, Preston, and his younger sister from North Carolina to Colorado so he could receive a marijuana oil that she hoped would ease the crippling seizures Preston had suffered since he was an infant. Amon’s photos capture the little joys of Preston’s life as the family traveled to Colorado and settled in, and documented the struggles that sometimes outnumbered the hopes.